

How wonderful is this small island? If it's any indication, God has over 300 houses here.

To be exact, there are 365 churches here - one for every day of the year and more than one for every square kilometre. There are three cathedrals, and even those who are not of a religious persuasion will be astonished by the ornate interior of the Co-Cathedral of St John. Two other churches boast the third and fourth largest unsupported domes in Europe after St Peter's in Rome and St Paul's in London. The majority of people here are devout, and religious events are marked with appropriate solemnity - though the week-long festivities which celebrate the various parish patron saints are explosions of colour, music and fireworks. The streets are showered with confetti and everyone gorges on nougat and candy floss. WHERE IS THIS PLACE?
